

Bouncing back from bad times: 9 ways to build resilience

The ability to recover from hard times can be learned. Find out about how to become resilient.

Resilience is the ability to cope with hard times, trauma and stress. It doesn't mean you won't feel sad or hurt when bad things happen. It means that when life hands you challenges, you can overcome them.

Resilience is not the rare gift of the few. Ordinary people of all ages have it. And those who don't have it can learn it.

Traits of resilient people

People who are resilient tend to have a positive outlook. They take control of their own lives. When tragedy strikes, they are better able to stay balanced and work their way through the setbacks. If you don't have these traits now, don't worry. You can cultivate them.

Nine ways to become more resilient

Here are some ideas that may help you build your resiliency:

- 1. Get connected. For many, having strong relationships is the most important factor in resiliency. Know who you can turn to when you need help or advice.
- 2. Take care of yourself — mentally, physically and spiritually. Do things that help you relax. Eat well, sleep enough and exercise. Make sure you're up to date with your health care.
- 3. Take action. Ask yourself: "What can I do to improve this situation?" Then do it. This can help you regain a sense of control.
- 4. Be goal-oriented. Set some realistic goals you can achieve and make progress toward them, even if they're small steps.

- 5. Go with the flow. Things always change. Focus on changes you can control.
- 6. Look beyond the moment. During bad times, remind yourself that you will get through this. Remind yourself, "this, too, shall pass."
- 7. Look on the bright side. Try to cultivate a positive attitude. Instead of focusing on what is wrong, turn your attention to what is right.
- 8. Practice positive self-talk. Give yourself credit for the good things you do. We truly are how we think.
- 9. Learn from experience. Remember how you and others have dealt with past problems. Think about what you did and how you can apply those lessons to what is happening now. Look to others you respect, who have gone through tough life challenges — and learn how they coped. These lessons may be invaluable.

Speak with a master's-level counselor 24 hours a day.

Medica® Optum®

Your Employee Assistance Program

1-800-626-7944

TTY users, please call 711.

Sources

National Institute of Mental Health. What is post-traumatic stress disorder, or PTSD? Accessed: November 30, 2018.
Womenshealth.gov. Stress and your health fact sheet. Accessed: November 30, 2018.
American Psychological Association. The road to resilience. Accessed: November 30, 2018.
Updated November 30, 2018.

This program should not be used for emergency or urgent care needs. In an emergency, call 911 or go to the nearest emergency room. This program is not a substitute for a doctor's or professional's care. This program and its components may not be available in all states or for all group sizes and is subject to change. Coverage exclusions and limitations may apply.

© 2018 Medica. Medica® is a registered service mark of Medica Health Plans. "Medica" refers to the family of health plan businesses that includes Medica Health Plans, Medica Health Plans of Wisconsin, Medica Insurance Company, Medica Self-Insured, and Medica Health Management, LLC.

Medica complies with applicable federal civil rights laws and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, disability or sex. If you want free help translating this information, call the number included in this document or on the back of your Medica ID card.

Si desea asistencia gratuita para traducir esta información, llame al número que figura en este documento o en la parte posterior de su tarjeta de identificación de Medica.

Yog kov xav tau kev pab dawb kom txhais daim ntwaw no, hu rau tus xov tooj nyob hauv daim ntwaw no los yog nyob nraum qab ntwaw koj daim npav Medica ID.